NVDA delivered another substantial >$1B beat/raise in its F2Q/F3Q top-line report/ guide (+6%/+6% respectively vs. DBe), and perhaps more importantly, allayed concerns of a more protracted delay in its next-gen Blackwell family of chips by guiding for shipments of "several billion dollars" in F4Q. The strong top-line result/ guidance were powered by accelerated purchases of Hopper, with demand strength importantly expected to continue even as Blackwell hits the market (growth accelerating in F4Q?). The primary negative of the print/guide/Blackwell commentary comes on the GM line where NVDA reiterated that rising mix of new products would continue to weigh on GM into F3Q and seemingly even more so in F4Q (as Blackwell truly ramps). Overall, we remain impressed with NVDA's technological leadership in the exploding AI sector, and despite the smallest of hiccups in its gen-to-gen transition (seemingly weighing on share price in after market), believe Blackwell will ramp strongly and the co's market dominance will continue into CY25+. However, even with this positive fundamental view yielding a +~15% increase in our CY25 EPS ests, based on a consistent 30x P/E multiple (and resulting $115 P/T), we view the shares as fairly valued. Maintain Hold.

Positives outweigh negatives

Positives: 1) NVDA continues to benefit from strong and diversified demand (evidenced by more than 50% of Data Center revs coming from consumer internet and enterprise companies), delivering revenues of ~$30b (vs. DBe of $28.5b) with Data Center once again leading the way on continued AI goodness (specifically focused on Hopper purchases). 2) Despite concerns around a delayed launch of the co's Blackwell platform (due to technical concerns, see note here), the company expressed confidence that the delays are limited with its expectations to ship "ship several billion dollars" of Blackwell revenue in F4Q (while still seeing strong Hopper demand as well). 3) After the first half of FY25 the co has returned ~$15.4b to shareholders (inclusive of repurchases and dividends), and has an additional $57.5b share repurchase authorization remaining following its board adding $50b. Negatives: 1) The co saw GM declined a significant (albeit expected) -320bps q/q in F2Q due to inventory provisions for low-yielding Blackwell material and a mix shift towards new products within the co's Data Center business. This trend is expected to directionally continue in F3Q (GM guided down -70bps q/q) and again in F4Q (implied in ~-200bps q/q) as new product mix rises/accelerates. 2) Opex continues to grow at a significant clip, up +12% q/q and 52% y/y, albeit accompanying continued aggressive revenue expansion (with F2Q revs up +15% q/q and +122% y/y). FY25 opex growth guidance increased to +mid-to-high 40% range y/y (to ~$11.5b vs ~$11.3b prior), but even with this increase the company should yield better opex intensity than we formerly modeled.

Another significant beat and raise

NVDA reported Jul-qtr revenues of $30.0b (+15% q/q, +122% y/y), once again solidly above guidance/DBe of $28.0b/$28.4b and Street at $28.8b. By end market, Data Center revs beat our expectations (+$1.6b above DBe) led by growth in Enterprise. Gaming revs were below our expectations (+8% q/q vs DBe +10% q/q), Proviz revs of $454m (+6% q/q vs. DBe +5% q/q) were above our expectations, Auto revs of $346m (+5% q/q vs. DBe +15% q/q) were below our ests, and OEM/Other revs of $88m beat our ests at $82m. PF GMs came in at 75.7%, vs. guidance 75.5%, and PF Opex came in at $2.79b vs. guidance/DBe $2.80b. All told, Jul-qtr EPS totaled $0.68, above DBe/Street at $0.63/$0.65 on better revs & margins. NVDA guided revenues to $32.5b (+8.2% q/q), above DBe/Street at $32.3b/$31.9b on continued strength in Data Center. Non-GAAP GM was guided to 75.0% (vs. DBe 74.6%), with non-GAAP OpEx guided to $3.0b (vs. DBe $2.94b), yielding implied non-GAAP EPS of ~$0.74, above DBe/Street at $0.68/$0.71. Our CY24E revenue/ EPS moves to $126.5b (+108% y/y)/ $2.85 from $118.1b (+94% y/y)/ $2.65, and our CY25E revs/EPS move to $173.1b (+37% y/y)/ $3.85 from $146.2b (+24% y/y)/$3.29 prior. Our CY26E rev/EPS ests move to $195.1b (+13% y/y)/ $4.40 from $161.9b (+11% y/y)/ $3.68 prior.

Maintain Hold rating, raise P/T to $115

On higher estimates, we raise our P/T to $115 and maintain our Hold rating. Our P/T is based on a consistent multiple of ~30x our CY25E EPS, a premium to the co's recent trading range in the 20-25x range to reflect strong earnings momentum, but still a discount to the co's 5-year average. Upside/downside risks include better-/ worse-than-expected Gaming, Data Center, Automotive, and OEM/Other revenue growth, higher-/lower-than-expected profitability, macro, design win/product execution, and market share shifts. Positive/negative company-specific risks include market share gains/losses in Graphics and Compute & Networking businesses, competitive and pricing pressure, product execution, and impacts to profitability from investments.

Deutsche Bank has no obligation to update, modify or amend this report or to otherwise notify a recipient thereof if an opinion, forecast or estimate changes or becomes inaccurate. Macroeconomic fluctuations often account for most of the risks associated with exposures to instruments that promise to pay fixed or variable interest rates. For an investor who is long fixed-rate instruments (thus receiving these cash flows), increases in interest rates naturally lift the discount factors applied to the expected cash flows and thus cause a loss. The longer the maturity of a certain cash flow and the higher the move in the discount factor, the higher will be the loss. Upside surprises in inflation, fiscal funding needs, and FX depreciation rates are among the most common adverse macroeconomic shocks to receivers. But counterparty exposure, issuer creditworthiness, client segmentation, regulation (including changes in assets holding limits for different types of investors), changes in tax policies, currency convertibility (which may constrain currency conversion, repatriation of profits and/or liquidation of positions), and settlement issues related to local clearing houses are also important risk factors. The sensitivity of fixed-income instruments to macroeconomic shocks may be mitigated by indexing the contracted cash flows to inflation, to FX depreciation, or to specified interest rates - these are common in emerging markets. The index fixings may - by construction - lag or mis-measure the actual move in the underlying variables they are intended to track. The choice of the proper fixing (or metric) is particularly important in swaps markets, where floating coupon rates (i.e., coupons indexed to a typically short-dated interest rate reference index) are exchanged for fixed coupons. Funding in a currency that differs from the currency in which coupons are denominated carries FX risk. Options on swaps (swaptions) the risks typical to options in addition to the risks related to rates movements.

Derivative transactions involve numerous risks including market, counterparty default and illiquidity risk. The appropriateness of these products for use by investors depends on the investors' own circumstances, including their tax position, their regulatory environment and the nature of their other assets and liabilities; as such, investors should take expert legal and financial advice before entering into any transaction similar to or inspired by the contents of this publication. The risk of loss in futures trading and options, foreign or domestic, can be substantial. As a result of the high degree of leverage obtainable in futures and options trading, losses may be incurred that are greater than the amount of funds initially deposited - up to theoretically unlimited losses. Trading in options involves risk and is not suitable for all investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, investors must review the 'Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options", at https://www.theocc.com/company-information/documents-and-archives/publications. If you are unable to access the website, please contact your Deutsche Bank representative for a copy of this important document.

Participants in foreign exchange transactions may incur risks arising from several factors, including the following: (i) exchange rates can be volatile and are subject to large fluctuations; (ii) the value of currencies may be affected by numerous market factors, including world and national economic, political and regulatory events, events in equity and debt markets and changes in interest rates; and (iii) currencies may be subject to devaluation or government-imposed exchange controls, which could affect the value of the currency. Investors in securities such as ADRs, whose values are affected by the currency of an underlying security, effectively assume currency risk.

Unless governing law provides otherwise, all transactions should be executed through the Deutsche Bank entity in the investor's home jurisdiction. Aside from within this report, important conflict disclosures can also be found at https://research.db.com/Research/ on each company's research page. Investors are strongly encouraged to review this information before investing.

Backtested, hypothetical or simulated performance results have inherent limitations. Unlike an actual performance record based on trading actual client portfolios, simulated results are achieved by means of the retroactive application of a backtested model itself designed with the benefit of hindsight. Taking into account historical events the backtesting of performance also differs from actual account performance because an actual investment strategy may be adjusted any time, for any reason, including a response to material, economic or market factors. The backtested performance includes hypothetical results that do not reflect the reinvestment of dividends and other earnings or the deduction of advisory fees, brokerage or other commissions, and any other expenses that a client would have paid or actually paid. No representation is made that any trading strategy or account will or is likely to achieve profits or losses similar to those shown. Alternative modeling techniques or assumptions might produce significantly different results and prove to be more appropriate. Past hypothetical backtest results are neither an indicator nor guarantee of future returns. Actual results will vary, perhaps materially, from the analysis.

The method for computing individual E,S,G and composite ESG scores set forth herein is a novel method developed by the Research department within Deutsche Bank AG, computed using a systematic approach without human intervention. Different data providers, market sectors and geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. As such, the ESG scores referred to herein may differ from equivalent ratings developed and implemented by other ESG data providers in the market and may also differ from equivalent ratings developed and implemented by other divisions within the Deutsche Bank Group. Such ESG scores also differ from other ratings and rankings that have historically been applied in research reports published by Deutsche Bank AG. Further, such ESG scores do not represent a formal or official view of Deutsche Bank AG. It should be noted that the decision to incorporate ESG factors into any investment strategy may inhibit the ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with your investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.
