Underlying Momentum vs. Veil of Complexity

Key takeaways from KO's 4Q23 results

As discussed this morning, KO finished the year on a strong note – i.e., with organic growth (+12%, alongside +2% UCS) and gross margin comfortably exceeding expectations, and in-line EPS mainly held-up on higher marketing investments. Moreover, broadly confirming core pillars of FY24 guidance (+6-7% organic growth, +10-12% underlying EPS growth ex-FX and structural items) drove modest stock outperformance on the day (-0.6% vs. S&P500 -1.4%). However, the combined impact of (i) more elevated FX headwinds (largely driven by hyperinflationary markets), and (ii) more adverse M&A impacts of bottling divestitures, served to temper KO's all-in 2024 comparable sales (-2% to +1%) and EPS (+4% to +5%) growth outlook, while (iii) muted FCF conversion (~75% before considering ~$6B in likely FY24 IRS payments) also trailed going-in expectations (on account of transition tax and M&A tax payments)—ultimately holding back even stronger stock performance, in our view.

On the top line, management expects organic growth to turn more balanced by 4Q as benefits from hyperinflationary pricing (mainly skewed into 1H) subsides, while volume growth (~+1-2 pts) and normalized pricing (~3%) holds across the non-hyperinflationary markets (95% of sales). Although KO continues to lean into RGM tools (including price-pack architecture optimization across both affordable and premium price-points), the full-year organic outlook assumes minimal mix benefits, noting channel mix has largely normalized—a dominant source of positive mix in previous years. Gross margin is expected to expand in 2024 largely due to more normalized cost inflation as well as the mechanical effect of low-margin bottler re-franchising as the year progresses. Looking into 1Q, however, both top-line and bottom-line delivery may be more restrained as a result of concentrate shipment timing reversal, tough compares across NA and China, challenging Middle East dynamics, one less selling day, the lapping of inventory phasing benefits, higher other expenses on monetary asset revaluation in Argentina, and less margin benefits (vs. the balance of the year) from the timing of Philippines/India bottling divestitures.

Stepping back, we see underlying business momentum undeniably tracking in the right direction, with ongoing capabilities investment (e.g., capacity builds for Fairlife, as well as in India) well placed. However, FX, M&A, and transition tax dynamics do present legitimate headwinds to future EPS and FCF¹ — even before considering potential IRS/Tax Court payments and/or settlement costs. Altogether, our FY24 EPS declines to $2.82 (from $2.83). Our $63 target price remains unchanged, and we remain Hold rated.

Estimate changes and Valuation

Given ongoing underlying momentum partly offset by greater FX headwinds and bottling divestiture impacts, we trim our FY24 EPS to $2.82 (from $2.83) which is consistent with upper end of KO's guidance range (i.e., $2.80-$2.82). Specifically, our headline organic growth estimate rises to +7.0% (up from +6.5%; consistent with high end of +6%-7% guidance) for the year, predicated on concentrate volume of +2.0% and price/mix of +5.0%. Baking in more adverse FX headwinds and bottling asset divestiture impacts, we now model sales growth of +0.3% (down from +2.5%; consistent with guidance range of -2% to +1%) Given bottling assets divestment and easing commodity costs, we now model gross margin expansion of ~+30 bps to 60.0% (from 59.5%). However, gross margin upside partially funds higher SG&A reinvestments, leading to a more modest increase in operating margin to 30.3% (from 30.2%).

Our target price remains DCF-based, assuming roughly +4.5% normalized sales growth, +6% normalized EBIT growth, a 7.5% WACC, 1.75% terminal growth, and $6-$7 incremental value derived from KO's minority investments. Upside risks include: positive developments in macroeconomic trends, interest rates, credit conditions, and/or competitive activity in key markets; favorable decision on appeal or beneficial settlement of recent tax challenges; and weakening USD. Downside risks include: competitive activity, credit conditions within key markets, macro demand swings, instability of key customer and/or supplier relationships; adverse decision on appeal of recent tax challenge and/or more onerous go-forward penalties than anticipated; and/or a strengthening USD.

Macroeconomic fluctuations often account for most of the risks associated with exposures to instruments that promise to pay fixed or variable interest rates. For an investor who is long fixed-rate instruments (thus receiving these cash flows), increases in interest rates naturally lift the discount factors applied to the expected cash flows and thus cause a loss. The longer the maturity of a certain cash flow and the higher the move in the discount factor, the higher will be the loss. Upside surprises in inflation, fiscal funding needs, and FX depreciation rates are among the most common adverse macroeconomic shocks to receivers. But counterparty exposure, issuer creditworthiness, client segmentation, regulation (including changes in assets holding limits for different types of investors), changes in tax policies, currency convertibility (which may constrain currency conversion, repatriation of profits and/or liquidation of positions), and settlement issues related to local clearing houses are also important risk factors. The sensitivity of fixed-income instruments to macroeconomic shocks may be mitigated by indexing the contracted cash flows to inflation, to FX depreciation, or to specified interest rates - these are common in emerging markets. The index fixings may - by construction - lag or mis-measure the actual move in the underlying variables they are intended to track. The choice of the proper fixing (or metric) is particularly important in swaps markets, where floating coupon rates (i.e., coupons indexed to a typically short-dated interest rate reference index) are exchanged for fixed coupons. Funding in a currency that differs from the currency in which coupons are denominated carries FX risk. Options on swaps (swaptions) the risks typical to options in addition to the risks related to rates movements.

Derivative transactions involve numerous risks including market, counterparty default and illiquidity risk. The appropriateness of these products for use by investors depends on the investors' own circumstances, including their tax position, their regulatory environment and the nature of their other assets and liabilities; as such, investors should take expert legal and financial advice before entering into any transaction similar to or inspired by the contents of this publication. The risk of loss in futures trading and options, foreign or domestic, can be substantial. As a result of the high degree of leverage obtainable in futures and options trading, losses may be incurred that are greater than the amount of funds initially deposited - up to theoretically unlimited losses. Trading in options involves risk and is not suitable for all investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, investors must review the "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options", at <http://www.optionsclearing.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp>. If you are unable to access the website, please contact your Deutsche Bank representative for a copy of this important document.

Participants in foreign exchange transactions may incur risks arising from several factors, including the following: (i) exchange rates can be volatile and are subject to large fluctuations; (ii) the value of currencies may be affected by numerous market factors, including world and national economic, political and regulatory events, events in equity and debt markets and changes in interest rates; and (iii) currencies may be subject to devaluation or government-imposed exchange controls, which could affect the value of the currency. Investors in securities such as ADRs, whose values are affected by the currency of an underlying security, effectively assume currency risk.

Unless governing law provides otherwise, all transactions should be executed through the Deutsche Bank entity in the investor's home jurisdiction. Aside from within this report, important conflict disclosures can also be found at <https://research.db.com/Research/> on each company's research page. Investors are strongly encouraged to review this information before investing.

Backtested, hypothetical or simulated performance results have inherent limitations. Unlike an actual performance record based on trading actual client portfolios, simulated results are achieved by means of the retroactive application of a backtested model itself designed with the benefit of hindsight. Taking into account historical events the backtesting of performance also differs from actual account performance because an actual investment strategy may be adjusted any time, for any reason, including a response to material, economic or market factors. The backtested performance includes hypothetical results that do not reflect the reinvestment of dividends and other earnings or the deduction of advisory fees, brokerage or other commissions, and any other expenses that a client would have paid or actually paid. No representation is made that any trading strategy or account will or is likely to achieve profits or losses similar to those shown. Alternative modeling techniques or assumptions might produce significantly different results and prove to be more appropriate. Past hypothetical backtest results are neither an indicator nor guarantee of future returns. Actual results will vary, perhaps materially, from the analysis.

The method for computing individual E,S,G and composite ESG scores set forth herein is a novel method developed by the Research department within Deutsche Bank AG, computed using a systematic approach without human intervention. Different data providers, market sectors and geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. As such, the ESG scores referred to herein may differ from equivalent ratings developed and implemented by other ESG data providers in the market and may also differ from equivalent ratings developed and implemented by other divisions within the Deutsche Bank Group. Such ESG scores also differ from other ratings and rankings that have historically been applied in research reports published by Deutsche Bank AG. Further, such ESG scores do not represent a formal or official view of Deutsche Bank AG. It should be noted that the decision to incorporate ESG factors into any investment strategy may inhibit the ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with your investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.
