Managing Through Inflation

Key takeaways from KO's 1Q24 results

As discussed this morning, KO started the year on a strong note – i.e., 1Q organic growth of +11%, +1% UCS growth, gross margin up +135 bps YOY, and EPS of $0.72 vs. Street: $0.70. All-in, KO comfortably exceeded expectations on nearly all key metrics, all while negating FX headwinds through higher pricing realization (+6 pts contribution from hyperinflation markets), absorbing adverse shipment timing dynamics (as well as roughly a -1 pt headwind from Middle East disruption), and fueling higher SG&A investments (+75 bps, or +5% YOY, with SG&A +HSD). Moreover, KO maintained its US dollar-based EPS growth outlook (+4%-5%, implying $2.80-$2.82), embedding higher organic growth/constant currency EPS growth for the year broadly offsetting greater FX headwinds.

From here, KO emphasized its proactive approach to managing through inflationary pressures in select Developing and Emerging markets locally, and highlighted consistent underlying performance across the majority of other markets globally. Notably, KO sees signs of improving consumer confidence in the US and Europe (notwithstanding modest shifts towards value consciousness/at-home consumption), as well as improving momentum in India exiting March. In China, strong execution on controllable factors (i.e. RGM, marketing, innovation, marketplace execution etc.) has positioned the company relatively well in a difficult consumer backdrop. Finally, at the category/brand level, KO continues to innovate/renovate across its sparkling portfolio with a focus on trademark Coke and Coke Zero Sugar, while at the same time showing renewed confidence in the 2-brand strategy in Sports drinks (Powerade and BODYARMOR).

Altogether, our FY24 EPS increases modestly to $2.83 (from $2.82). Similarly, our price target goes to $64 (from $63). We remain Hold rated -- looking for greater signs of inflection in FCF or USD-based earnings growth, and/or a path to resolution on US Tax Matters.

Estimate changes and Valuation

Reflecting better-than-expected 1Q results, our FY24 EPS moves to $2.83 (from $2.82), which is slightly above the upper end of KO's guidance range (i.e., $2.80-$2.82). Specifically, our headline organic growth estimate rises to +9.4% (up from +7.3%; slightly above the high end of +8%-9% guidance) for the year, predicated on concentrate volume of +1.4% and price/mix of +8.0%. headwinds partially offsetting improved organic growth, we now model sales growth of -1.2% (up from -1.6%; consistent with guidance range of -2% to +1%). We now also model gross margin expansion of ~+85 bps to 60.5% (from 60.0%). However, higher SG&A reinvestments works to offset gross margin upside, leading to a modest ~+30 bps increase in operating margin (to 30.5%, down from 30.7%).

Our target price remains DCF-based, assuming roughly +4.5% normalized sales growth, +6% normalized EBIT growth, a 7.5% WACC, 1.75% terminal growth, and $6-$7 incremental value derived from KO's minority investments. Upside risks include: positive developments in macroeconomic trends, interest rates, credit conditions, and/or competitive activity in key markets; favorable decision on appeal or beneficial settlement of recent tax challenges; and weakening USD. Downside risks include: competitive activity, credit conditions within key markets, macro demand swings, instability of key customer and/or supplier relationships; adverse decision on appeal of recent tax challenge and/or more onerous go-forward penalties than anticipated; and/or a strengthening USD.

Macroeconomic fluctuations often account for most of the risks associated with exposures to instruments that promise to pay fixed or variable interest rates. For an investor who is long fixed-rate instruments (thus receiving these cash flows), increases in interest rates naturally lift the discount factors applied to the expected cash flows and thus cause a loss. The longer the maturity of a certain cash flow and the higher the move in the discount factor, the higher will be the loss. Upside surprises in inflation, fiscal funding needs, and FX depreciation rates are among the most common adverse macroeconomic shocks to receivers. But counterparty exposure, issuer creditworthiness, client segmentation, regulation (including changes in assets holding limits for different types of investors), changes in tax policies, currency convertibility (which may constrain currency conversion, repatriation of profits and/or liquidation of positions), and settlement issues related to local clearing houses are also important risk factors. The sensitivity of fixed-income instruments to macroeconomic shocks may be mitigated by indexing the contracted cash flows to inflation, to FX depreciation, or to specified interest rates - these are common in emerging markets. The index fixings may - by construction - lag or mis-measure the actual move in the underlying variables they are intended to track. The choice of the proper fixing (or metric) is particularly important in swaps markets, where floating coupon rates (i.e., coupons indexed to a typically short-dated interest rate reference index) are exchanged for fixed coupons. Funding in a currency that differs from the currency in which coupons are denominated carries FX risk. Options on swaps (swaptions) the risks typical to options in addition to the risks related to rates movements.

Derivative transactions involve numerous risks including market, counterparty default and illiquidity risk. The appropriateness of these products for use by investors depends on the investors' own circumstances, including their tax position, their regulatory environment and the nature of their other assets and liabilities; as such, investors should take expert legal and financial advice before entering into any transaction similar to or inspired by the contents of this publication. The risk of loss in futures trading and options, foreign or domestic, can be substantial. As a result of the high degree of leverage obtainable in futures and options trading, losses may be incurred that are greater than the amount of funds initially deposited - up to theoretically unlimited losses. Trading in options involves risk and is not suitable for all investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, investors must review the "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options", at <http://www.optionsclearing.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp>. If you are unable to access the website, please contact your Deutsche Bank representative for a copy of this important document.

Participants in foreign exchange transactions may incur risks arising from several factors, including the following: (i) exchange rates can be volatile and are subject to large fluctuations; (ii) the value of currencies may be affected by numerous market factors, including world and national economic, political and regulatory events, events in equity and debt markets and changes in interest rates; and (iii) currencies may be subject to devaluation or government-imposed exchange controls, which could affect the value of the currency. Investors in securities such as ADRs, whose values are affected by the currency of an underlying security, effectively assume currency risk.

Unless governing law provides otherwise, all transactions should be executed through the Deutsche Bank entity in the investor's home jurisdiction. Aside from within this report, important conflict disclosures can also be found at <https://research.db.com/Research/> on each company's research page. Investors are strongly encouraged to review this information before investing.

Backtested, hypothetical or simulated performance results have inherent limitations. Unlike an actual performance record based on trading actual client portfolios, simulated results are achieved by means of the retroactive application of a backtested model itself designed with the benefit of hindsight. Taking into account historical events the backtesting of performance also differs from actual account performance because an actual investment strategy may be adjusted any time, for any reason, including a response to material, economic or market factors. The backtested performance includes hypothetical results that do not reflect the reinvestment of dividends and other earnings or the deduction of advisory fees, brokerage or other commissions, and any other expenses that a client would have paid or actually paid. No representation is made that any trading strategy or account will or is likely to achieve profits or losses similar to those shown. Alternative modeling techniques or assumptions might produce significantly different results and prove to be more appropriate. Past hypothetical backtest results are neither an indicator nor guarantee of future returns. Actual results will vary, perhaps materially, from the analysis.

The method for computing individual E,S,G and composite ESG scores set forth herein is a novel method developed by the Research department within Deutsche Bank AG, computed using a systematic approach without human intervention. Different data providers, market sectors and geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. As such, the ESG scores referred to herein may differ from equivalent ratings developed and implemented by other ESG data providers in the market and may also differ from equivalent ratings developed and implemented by other divisions within the Deutsche Bank Group. Such ESG scores also differ from other ratings and rankings that have historically been applied in research reports published by Deutsche Bank AG. Further, such ESG scores do not represent a formal or official view of Deutsche Bank AG. It should be noted that the decision to incorporate ESG factors into any investment strategy may inhibit the ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with your investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio consisting primarily of sustainable investments may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ. Companies may not necessarily meet high performance standards on all aspects of ESG or sustainable investing issues; there is also no guarantee that any company will meet expectations in connection with corporate responsibility, sustainability, and/or impact performance.
