

FX Technical Update

Dollar weakness pauses, but we'd like to see more technical evidence before declaring that the trend is over

- EUR/USD tentative fades from overhead resistance levels, but the chart lacks a clear bearish reversal pattern at this point, and the pair is still trading above the 1.1214-1.1276 breakout support zone.
- The GBP/USD rally stalls below a cluster of resistance at 1.3398-1.3545 that includes the Sep 2024 peak. The deceleration into that area triggered one of our pattern-based sell signals, but the chart still lacks a clear bearish reversal pattern at this point. We will see if one develops over the near term and increases the probability for a more substantial mean reversion of the 2025 rally.
- USD/JPY bounces from critical longer-term range and pattern support near 140. We think the bounce can extend some but expect it to fade near the 146.89-147.18 confluence of Fibonacci retracement levels. Bigger picture, we think the pair breaks range support into the summer months.
- AUD/USD rebounds back into critical resistance near 0.64. We think the move fades and the pair eventually comes under selling pressure again in the weeks ahead.

Figure 1: The US dollar index bounces but only after overshooting the 1.0806-1.0881 medium-term support cluster and without clear technical signals that would bolster a lasting bottom.

EUR/USD rally stalls but maintains the springtime range breakout zone for now

EUR/USD fades after the latest rally leg tagged the lower end of a broad cluster of resistance levels between 1.1502-1.1881 (Figure 2). In Elliott wave terms, the 2025 rally now has a complete 5-wave structure, with the post-Liberation Day portion of that trend having carved out an extended 5th-wave. The recent reversal also triggered another of our momentum divergence sell signals. The two prior signals that have triggered since early-Mar only provided short-lived pauses in the current bull trend. We will see how the market behaves in the days ahead and take our cues from that. So far, the chart lacks a clear bearish reversal pattern, and the pair is still trading above the 1.1214-1.1276 longer-term range breakout zone that also includes the Mar 27 38.2% retrace level. Ideally, some range action above that support and at least one retest of the aforementioned resistance zone produces a top pattern that we can post up against from a technical perspective, which would favor a more substantial retracement of the 2025 rally into the summer. Absent that, an immediate break through 1.12 should be respective, especially if that coincides with a bearish reversal in risky markets and dovish repricing at the front end of DM yield curves. That break in the recent cross-market correlation and return to the more typical behavior could mark an important inflection for markets heading into the summer, in our view. Next support rests at the 1.1026-1.105 Fibonacci confluence, and then 1.0688-1.0955 medium-term support layer.

Cable rally stalls near the Sep 2024 peak and other nearby resistance levels

GBP/USD stalls near a cluster of resistance at 1.3398-1.3545 that includes the Jan-Apr .618 swing objective, May 2021 78.6% retrace, 1.3436 Sep 2024 high, and dual channel trend lines (Figure 3). The momentum divergence sell signal that triggered this week favors more backing and filling over the near term, but we note that a clear bearish reversal pattern isn't present on the chart at this point. We suspect one can form near current levels, but would need to see that price pattern to have higher conviction that the market is set to see a broader retracement of the 2025 rally. Tactical support rests at the 1.3151 Apr 7 38.2% retrace, with more significant levels clustered at 1.2834-1.2982. That includes the 200-day MA and a cluster of other Fibonacci retracement levels. On the top side, a re-acceleration of the rally through the noted resistance levels would turn our attention to the 1.3816 Jan-Apr equal swings objective.

Figure 3: The GBP/USD rally stalls below a cluster of resistance at 1.3398-1.3545 that includes the Sep 2024 peak. The deceleration into that area triggered one of our pattern-based sell signals, but the chart still lacks a clear bearish reversal pattern at this point. We will see if one develops over the near term and increases the probability for a more substantial mean reversion of the 2025 rally.

USD/JPY bounces from critical pattern support near 140

USD/JPY bounces from critical support near 140, which marks the lower end of the multi-year range and potential top pattern. It also includes the Jan-Mar equal swings objective and a cluster of longer-term Fibonacci retracement levels (Figure 4). We think the market could see more backing and filling above that support over the near term, but we think the 146.89-147.18 cluster of Fibonacci retracement levels will end up capping a rebound. Bigger picture, we expect the market to eventually break longer-term pattern support and make its way first to the 136.50 Jul 2024-Jan 2025 equal swings objective. The amplitude of the 2023-2025 top pattern implies a much more aggressive slide following a breakdown provided old support is sustained as new resistance once the market releases lower in the months ahead.

Figure 4: USD/JPY bounces from critical longer-term range and pattern support near 140. We think the bounce can extend some, but expect it to fade near the 146.89-147.18 confluence of Fibonacci retracement levels. Bigger picture, we think the pair breaks range support into the summer months.

AUD/USD rally meets key resistance near 0.64 and triggers short-term sell signals

AUD/USD rebounds all the way back to the critical area near 0.64 after bottoming at the 0.576-0.5921 support zone earlier in the month (Figure 5). Overhead resistance includes the former 2024 range support, the recent 2025 peaks, and 200-day moving average. The rally deceleration that developed into that resistance zone triggered a cluster of our momentum divergence sell signals. At minimum, those signals favor some backing and filling below the noted resistance levels, with the 0.6299 50-day moving average marking first support for a pullback. That said, we expect risky markets more broadly to roll over from their respective resistance zones across markets, and think those markets are subject to a retest of the initial risk-off lows that unfolded earlier in the month. AUD/USD fits within that cohort of markets. Fibonacci retracement support associated with the Apr rebound rests at 0.6238, 0.6177, 0.6155, and then 0.6027. At minimum, we think AUD/USD could see a retest of the 0.5921 Jan-Mar pattern objective and 0.5876 Oct 2024-Mar 2025 .618 swing objective into the summer. Alternatively, we would respect a sustained break above the 0.6464 200-day moving average, which would lead us to rethink our medium-term views, especially if other risky markets are also pushing through their respective resistance zones. Next resistance rests at the 0.655 Sep 2024 61.8% retrace.

Figure 5: AUD/USD rebounds back into critical resistance near 0.64. We think the move fades and the pair eventually comes under selling pressure again in the weeks ahead.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
