

FX Technical Update

Broad dollar weakness remains a dominant theme, but we are looking for more dispersion in the weeks ahead

- EUR/USD keeps a bullish short-term trend bias for now after the surprising Jan-Aug range breakout. Key support rests at that 1.0949-1.0981 breakout zone. Major resistance sits overhead at 1.125-1.1297. We are looking for a new top pattern to form below that resistance.
- The GBP/USD rally reaches the 1.3143-1.3174 cluster of resistance levels, an area we suspect the market can stall at and potentially reverse from, but there is no sign of that just yet. Until that pattern sets up, the trend bias stays bullish, especially while trading above the 1.2827-1.2874 recent tactical pattern breakout. Longer-term resistance rests at the 1.3414 Jun 2021 78.6% retrace.
- USD/JPY trades in a bearish consolidation pattern after the rebound from key support near 140 stalled at the first resistance zone that includes the 149.18 broken Jan 2023 channel trend line and 149.514 Jul 3 38.2% retrace, and 150.102 Jul 30 61.8% retrace.
- AUD/USD rallies back into the upper end of a well-defined trading range after tagging the bottom of that holding pattern during the early-Aug risk-off move. We are looking for the pair to form a short-term top pattern near the 0.68-0.69 resistance zone.

Surprising 2024 range breakout keeps EUR/USD bullish for now, but we expect the pair to reject key levels in 1.12-handles

EUR/USD surprises with a clear breakout from the Jan-Aug trading range despite a pair of our momentum divergence sell signals as the market probed what was expected resistance parameters near 1.10 (Figure 1). For now, trend dynamics stay bullish until we see a clear deceleration pattern develop that triggers a new set of momentum divergence sell signals, or unless the market bearishly whipsaws the 1.0949-1.0981 breakout zone. Having already reached the 1.1142 late-Dec high, the next big cluster of resistance levels rest at 1.125-1.1297. That area includes the Apr-Aug pattern objective, Jan 2021 61.8% retrace, Jul 2023 range peak, Oct-Apr equal swings objective, and Jan-Aug pattern objective. Even if the current move extends, we expect that zone of levels to cap the advance and for a bearish trend reversal to develop.

Figure 1: EUR/USD keeps a bullish short-term trend bias for now after the surprising Jan-Aug range breakout. Key support rests at that 1.0949-1.0981 breakout zone. Major resistance sits overhead at 1.125-1.1297. We are looking for a new top pattern to form below that resistance.

Cable rally reaches the 1.3143-1.3174 resistance zone

GBP/USD keeps a bullish short-term trend bias for now after the recent breakout from 1.2827-1.2874 tactical pattern resistance (Figure 2). The rally has already gotten to the next cluster of resistance levels that include the 1.3143 Sep 2023 channel, 1.317 Apr channel, and 1.3174 Oct-Apr equal swings objective. We suspect that the market will fade from those levels and potentially form a broader bearish trend reversal pattern; however, there is little evidence on in the high-frequency price action to bolster our conviction in that view at the moment. If the rally reaccelerates, the next chart-based level comes in at the 1.3414 Jun 2021 78.6% retrace. Conversely, the a break through the 1.2827 50-day moving average would turn our attention to next support at the 1.272 Apr channel 1.2692-1.2720 100-day and 200-day moving averages, and 1.2664 Aug trough.

Figure 2: The GBP/USD rally reaches the 1.3143-1.3174 cluster of resistance levels, an area we suspect the market can stall at and potentially reverse from, but there is no sign of that just yet. Until that pattern sets up, the trend bias stays bullish, especially while trading above the 1.2827-1.2874 recent tactical pattern breakout. Longer-term resistance rests at the 1.3414 Jun 2021 78.6% retrace.

USD/JPY bearishly consolidates after the summer slide and within a multi-quarter top pattern above key support near 140

Little changes with the our USD/JPY views, as the price action reinforces the concept that the pair is bearishly consolidating on the heels of the sharp summertime slide. So far, the rebound from near key support that includes the 140.499 Jan 2023 61.8% retrace, 140.25 Dec 2023 low, and 139.287 2020 38.2% retrace stalled at the first layer of overhead resistance (Figure 3). Look for residual strength to fade near that cluster that includes the 149.18 Jan 2023 channel, 149.514 Jul 38.2% retrace, and 151.31 200-day moving average. The medium-term bearish trend stays firmly intact while the pair is below the 151.723 Oct 2022/Oct 2023 highs and 151.863 Apr low. Other medium-term resistance rests at the 155.37-155.79 May-Jul pattern breakdown. The sharp nature of the Jul-Aug drop in the context of the sell signals on the monthly time frame and other low-frequency signals coming from other asset classes (UST curve breakouts) imply a transition from late-cycle to end-of-cycle, in our view (Figure 4). We think any selling pressure associated with a potential Sep-Oct risk-off move across global markets will likely hold support near 140 again. However, we see an increasing probability that the pair breaks the roader 2023-2024 longer-term top pattern neckline into 2025 and set the market on course for a drop to 124.40-128.79 longer-term targets.

Figure 3: USD/JPY trades in a bearish consolidation pattern after the rebound from key support near 140 stalled at the first resistance zone that includes the 149.18 broken Jan 2023 channel trend line and 149.514 Jul 3 38.2% retrace, and 150.102 Jul 30 61.8% retrace...

Figure 4: ... The recent price action confirmed the transition to a longer-term bear cycle, in our view. The low-frequency pattern-based signals on our model that started to trigger in late 2023 left us looking for that transition. Those signals have done a good job identifying cycle transitions in the last few decades. Look for some range action above 140 in the weeks ahead, and for that to give way to a break to 124.40-128.79 targets into 2025.

Look for AUD/USD to fade near 0.68-0.69 range resistance again

The AUD/USD sharp bounce from the 0.6361 Apr low and 0.6346 2022-2024 trend line extended through initial resistance at 0.66-0.663 and the 0.6628 Jul 61.8% retrace, which turns our attention to the 0.68-0.6901 2023-2024 range resistance zone (Figure 5). We expect the pair to fade near that area again, after traversing the full breadth of the multi-year holding pattern. We will look for a deceleration pattern and our associated momentum divergence sell signals into Sep to increase confidence in our view. The signaling would provide an attractive trade entry opportunity, as a downside reversal in this very cyclical pair would fit nicely with the bearish seasonal pattern in Sep and early-Oct for other risky markets around the globe. Please see our S&P 500 seasonal analysis in our last equity update here. On the downside, Look to the 0.66-0.665 cluster of moving averages to mark the first key chart levels. Below the range support levels noted above, longer-term support rests at the 0.6042 Mar 2020 78.6% retrace and 0.6023 Feb 2021-Jan 2023 .618 swing objective, then the 0.5757 2024 pattern objective, 0.5507 Mar 2020 cycle low, and 0.5396 2022-2024 pattern objective. Alternatively, an upside breakout would turn our attention to the 0.7092 Apr 2022 61.8% retrace and 0.7159 Jan 2023 peak.

Figure 5: AUD/USD rallies back into the upper end of a well-defined trading range after tagging the bottom of that holding pattern during the early-Aug risk-off move. We are looking for the pair to form a short-term top pattern near the 0.68-0.69 resistance zone.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock’s expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts’ coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst’s coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan’s Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
