

FX Technical Update

Look for short-term consolidation within the weak US dollar trend

- EUR/USD triggered a momentum divergence sell signal after the market achieved the Nov-Feb pattern-based rally objectives near 1.09. We think the pair is set for some consolidation within an emerging medium-term bull trend.
- Cable decelerates near the 1.303 Dec-Feb base pattern rally objective and triggers a cluster of our pattern-based sell signals. We expect mean reversion to the downside, consolidation over the near term, and see the 1.28 area as initial support.
- USD/JPY stabilizes at 146.95-148.86 support after a cluster of our pattern-based buy signals, but the bounce has been underwhelming so far. We suspect the pair can still see further upside over the near term, but look for that move to fade near 152.
- AUD/USD still looks like a potential base pattern formation, but so far, key resistance near 0.64 has acted as a barrier for the pair despite breakouts in other cyclical markets.

Figure 1: The broad US dollar forms a base pattern in the medium-term support zone. We expect further mean reversion and consolidation over the near term, but expect selling pressure to keep bounces contained after the recent Nov-Feb pattern breakdown.

EUR/USD triggers a pattern-based sell signal after meeting the Nov-Feb reversal pattern rally target

EUR/USD decelerated the breakout rally after achieving our initial medium-term targets in the 1.08-1.09-handles in part that were derived from the Nov-Feb bullish pattern formation (Figure 2). This week's two-sided price action in that target zone triggered one of our momentum divergence sell signals, a pattern-derived indication that implies an increased probability for mean reversion. The 1.0726 200-day moving average and nearby Feb 28 38.2% retrace mark initial support. In our view, the 1.0644 Feb 3 38.2% retrace marks the upper end of a key support zone for the pair, with the 1.0475-1.0529 early-Mar breakout and 50-day moving average comprising the lower end of that support layer. We expect that zone to mark a floor for the pair, and while above it, the emerging bull trend stays intact. Bigger picture, we think the pair can make its way to the upper end of the longer-term range and into the low-1.12-handles in the months ahead.

Cable rally stalls near the 1.303 Dec-Feb base pattern objective

The GBP/USD rally decelerated as it nears the 1.303 Dec-Feb pattern objective and other nearby resistance levels on the heels of the impulsive Feb and early-Mar pattern breakouts (Figure 3). That deceleration triggered a cluster of our pattern-base sell signals, which increase the probability for a near-term pullback within the developing bull trend. Look for such a move to find initial support at the 1.2811 Dec rebound high and 1.279 200-day moving average. We see the 1.2716 early-Mar breakout and 1.2665 Feb 38.2% retrace as the upper end of a medium-term support cluster. The 1.2597 50-day moving average and 1.2554 Feb breakout marks the lower end of that area. The developing medium-term bull trend stays intact while above that area, in our view. On the upside, next resistance rests at the 1.315 Sep 78.6% retrace, with the 1.3436 Sep peak as the next meaningful chart level beyond that.

Figure 3: Cable decelerates near the 1.303 Dec-Feb base pattern rally objective and triggers a cluster of our pattern-based sell signals. We expect mean reversion to the downside and consolidation over the near term and see the 1.28 area as initial support.

USD/JPY struggles to bounce from support, but setup still favors more short-term upside

USD/JPY has stabilized above the 146.95-148.86 support zone after the initial deceleration into that area triggered a large cluster of our pattern-based buy signals in late Feb and early Mar (Figure 4). So far, the bullish mean reversion has been underwhelming and still contained in the Jan bear channel with the upper end of that channel now standing at 149.77. Despite a lackluster start, we still think the pair can see further upside over the near term given the setup on the chart, range-bound UST market, and some stability on the 10-year JGBs chart near 1.50%. If that view does materialize, we suspect selling pressure near 152 resistance would likely contain the market and define the upper end of an interim USD/JPY range. The 50-day and 200-day moving averages sit in that area. The next resistance sits at the 154.16 Jan 61.8% retrace. On the downside, the lower end of the Jan channel has declined 145.33 and the 143.71 Sep 78.6% retrace sits below that.

Figure 4: USD/JPY stabilizes at 146.95-148.86 support after a cluster of our pattern-based buy signals, but the bounce has been underwhelming so far. We suspect the pair can still see further upside over the near term, but look for that move to fade near 152.

AUD/USD still struggles to overcome the 0.64 barrier

AUD/USD made another attempt to overtake the 0.6405 Oct 2022 internal trend line and 0.6414 Sep 38.2% retrace, but faded again from that key resistance zone (Figure 5). Other cyclically sensitive markets saw similar price action with the exception of copper and the copper/gold ratio that have built upon their respective pro-cyclical trends. AUD/USD is one of the few markets that has a decent relationship with the global manufacturing PMI data that have not yet broken through the key resistance levels associated with the Nov-Mar base patterns. Provided those other market trends remain intact, we suspect AUD/USD can see a catch-up rally in the weeks ahead, which would leave the 0.6508 Feb-Mar equal swings objective, 0.6515 200-day moving average, and 0.6616 Sep 61.8% retrace as the next levels to focus on after a breakout. The medium-term base pattern has a 0.67 measured move objective. For support, look to the 0.625 Feb-Mar trend line, 0.6211 Feb 61.8% retrace, and 0.617 Oct 2022 low as support within the current pattern. An unexpected re-acceleration to the downside would leave the 0.6044 Mar 2020 78.6% retrace as the next medium-term support level.

Figure 5: AUD/USD still looks like a potential base pattern formation, but so far, key resistance near 0.64 has acted as a barrier for the pair.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
