- The EUR/USD short-term rally reaches the upper end of the springtime trading range with the first of two medium-term resistance zones at 1.1502-1.1604. Tactical support within the current range rests at the 1.1258 50-day moving average. Key support is at 1.1026-1.105.
- GBP/USD triggers momentum divergence sell signals as it probes 1.3557-1.36 channel and trend-line resistance. The rally deceleration near key resistance levels favors downside mean reversion over the near term. Closes below 1.3416 would confirm a short-term trend reversal, in our view. Key support rests at 1.314-1.328.
- The USD/JPY short-term slide from 148.39-148.70 resistance stalls at 141.97-142.36 tactical support. Key medium-term support remains near 140, which we suspect holds into the early-summer. While we expect more range-trading over the near term, the longer-term price pattern continues to favor an eventual break to the downside.
- The AUD/USD bull trend hasn't faltered, but the move continues to fade near 0.6535-0.655 Fibonacci levels and on top of the 0.64-handle levels that have acted as a major bifurcation for the pair in recent quarters. The price action looks like a top pattern above 0.6344-0.6357 tactical support and the nearby 50-day moving average.

J.P. Morgan does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision.

Figure 1: The US dollar index extends its bear trend for another week, albeit on diminishing momentum. The sequence of bullish momentum divergences that have triggered into Jun and as the index tests the 1.0588-1.0682 support cluster favor some upside mean reversion. A break above resistance at 1.08-1.085 is needed to derail the Feb-Jun bear trend.

EUR/USD continues to trade in a broad range, with the 50-day moving average as near-term support

EUR/USD rallies into the upper end of the springtime range and toward medium-term resistance that includes the 1.1502 Elliott 5th-wave objective, 1.154 May equal swings objective, and 1.1612-1.1694 2021-2022 pattern objective (Figure 2). We've viewed that confluence and another at 1.1743-1.1761 as major resistance for the pair, an area we think will cap the market in the months ahead. Within the current range, the 1.1258 50-day moving average acted as support in mid- and again in late May. That also lines up with the 1.1214-1.1276 2024 range highs. We suspect that a break below that average could lead to increased selling pressure and a return to the 1.1026-1.105 Feb and Mar Fibonacci retracement zone.

Figure 2: The EUR/USD short-term rally reaches the upper end of the springtime trading range with the first of two medium-term resistance zones at 1.1502-1.1604. Tactical support within the current range rests at the 1.1258 50-day moving average. Key support is at 1.1026-1.105.

Cable rally decelerates at longer-term channel resistance

GBP/USD continues to bullishly pressure the confluence of longer-term trend line and channel resistance at 1.3557-1.36, but the lows of rally momentum in that area has also triggered bearish momentum divergence signals (Figure 3). What also looks like a potential ending diagonal pattern suggests bullish trend exhaustion for the advance that started at the 1.2099 Jan trough. In our view, a break below the 1.3416 May 29 low would confirm a short-term bearish trend reversal and target the 1.314-1.328 support zone. That area that includes the 50-day moving average, Jan-Apr trend line, chart pivots, and Apr Fibonacci retracement levels is critical to the health of the broader rally structure. We suspect a slide into that area would find material buying interest, at least upon the first test of that zone.

Figure 3: GBP/USD triggers momentum divergence sell signals as it probes 1.3557-1.36 channel and trend-line resistance. The rally deceleration near key resistance levels favors downside mean reversion over the near term. Closes below 1.3416 would confirm a short-term trend reversal, in our view. Key support rests at 1.314-1.328.

USD/JPY moves sideways above key levels near 140

USD/JPY continues to trade sideways below resistance at the 148.39 Apr-May equal swings objective and 148.70 Apr 3 pattern breakdown (Figure 4). The market currently holds above the 141.97-142.36 tactical support zone, which sits just above major pattern support surrounding 140. We continue to see the latter as the neckline for a multi-year top pattern following a more than decade-long bull market. We suspect the pair will see more range trading in the weeks ahead, but the longer-term price pattern and 2025 trend inertia continue to point to an eventual breakdown in the back half of the year. Initial breakdown support rests at the 138.88 Jan-Mar equal swings objective. That is followed by the 136.350 Jul 2024-Jan 2025 equal swings objective.

Figure 4: The USD/JPY short-term slide from 148.39-148.70 resistance stalls at 141.97-142.36 tactical support. Key medium-term support remains near 140, which we suspect holds into the early summer. While we expect more range trading over the near term, the longer-term price pattern continues to favor an eventual break to the downside.

AUD/USD rally continues to stall out near 0.6535-0.655 Fibonacci retracement resistance

The AUD/USD rally stays in gear, but the move continues to show signs of exhaustion after seeing material deceleration near the 0.635 Feb 2023 50% retrace and 0.655 Sep 2024 61.8% retrace. While there have been temporary breaks to the upside, the rally also stalls out right on top of the 0.6435 200-day moving average and the nearby internal trend line that had acted as major support ahead of the Dec-2024 breakdown. We would need to see a break below the 0.6344 mid-Apr distribution pattern low to confirm a bearish trend reversal. That price action would turn our attention to the Apr Fibonacci retracement levels as initial short-term support (0.63, 0.6227, 0.6153). We had expected a retest of the 0.5876-0.5921 Jan-Mar pattern objective and Oct 2024-Mar 2025 .618 swing objective into the summer months, but the shift in trade policy puts that on the back burner for now. On the upside, a re-acceleration of the rally would shift our attention to the 0.6683 Feb 2023 61.8% retrace as the next resistance level.

Figure 5: The AUD/USD bull trend hasn't faltered, but the move continues to fade near 0.6535-0.655 Fibonacci levels and on top of the 0.64-handle levels that have acted as a major bifurcation for the pair in recent quarters. The price action looks like a top pattern above 0.6344-0.6357 tactical support and the nearby 50-day moving average.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock’s expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts’ coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst’s coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan’s Research website, <https://www.jpmmarkets.com>.
