J.P. Morgan Virtual Meeting Takeaways: Optimistic On Growth For Its Datacenter Business In CY25; Continued Spending Mix Shift Towards GPU On Proliferation of AI Applications

We hosted a fireside chat with Colette Kress, NVIDIA's CFO. Below, we highlight our key takeaways:

- Strong product cycles should help position the company for another year of outsized performance in CY24 - Early innings of Gen AI infrastructure build-out. On strong product cycles combined with the build-out of generative AI, revenues are on track to more than double Y/Y in CY23. The team continues to see the strong momentum in Datacenter sustained into CY24 driven by strength across many areas like regional/sovereign AI (multi-billion market) and enterprise AI. Outside of its datacenter business, the team is also optimistic in the longer term growth of its gaming, proviz, and automotive businesses. Auto business should grow meaningfully in CY25 (Mercedes ramp).
- Continued supply growth to support revenue ramp in CY24; new product cycles support growth into CY25. Supply/demand balance remains tight entering CY24, and the team is still on an allocation model right now. That said, the team remains confident in driving supply growth through CY24. More importantly, new products are coming to the market in CY25 and the team believes that should drive sustained revenue growth into CY25. On China, the team expects to start shipping China compliant products this calendar year.
- AI/accelerated computing build-out will continue to drive spending mix shift towards GPU/accelerators. GPU-based spending was only a low-single-digit% of the $250B per year in data infrastructure spending, a year ago. The team has seen a shift toward higher GPU spending driven by accelerated computing and then also shifting to AI solutions. Longer term, the team believes GPU spending will continue to take more of the data infrastructure spending given the proliferation of generative AI applications. The team is accelerating the adoption with an accelerated product cadence and expanding the number of product SKUs that are optimized for a broad spectrum of AI workloads.
- Opportunity to move into the PC processor market with Arm-based solutions. We believe the team has all the right building blocks and mind share from its RTX installed base to expand its opportunity in AI-enabled PCs. The team already has a 100M installed base of RTX GPU-enabled PCs on top of its TensorRT-LLM compiler. Right now, the team is focus on ARM-CPU related efforts in data center and automotive though we believe the team can optimized a solution for the PC market. Mid to longer term, we believe the team can expand into the $40B PC processor market with an ARM-based solution for an integrated compute solution that is performance and power optimized for AI applications

J.P. Morgan does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision.

- Software/services a growing revenue contributor - Software growth consistent with its expanding installed base. NVIDIA is enabling customers to come to market rapidly by developing full stack, turnkey solutions and monetizing its software and platforms through subscription and licensing based services. The team is seeing strong traction with its DGX cloud service and AI enterprise software and the team believes revenue growth for its software business will be consistent with the growth in its infrastructure and hardware business.
- Strong investments to drive new product innovations and accelerated product cadence. The team will continue to drive strong investments/growth in R&D to support a more aggressive product roadmap combined with more products SKUs/variations. We believe the team will continue to drive a double-digit% growth in opex to fuel the market demand for more AI solutions.

Initiated coverage Apr 04, 2002. All share prices are as of market close on the previous business day.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period.
J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Neutral [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Underweight [Over the next six to twelve months, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the analyst's (or the analyst's team's) coverage universe.] Not Rated (NR): J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap equity research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
