Blackwell ramp upsides but April a little lighter than prior beats. The biggest risk to 2025 is now in the rear-view mirror.

From a top line perspective numbers came in a bit lighter than what we thought for April, but this was always the biggest quarter of risk in our eyes. Blackwell upside in Jan combined with H200 growth means a big step down in H100 and the company is pointing to a crossover for Blackwell in April. It sounds like the early Blackwell transition saw more discreet B200 sales than systems, which accounts for the Networking miss that was probably the only glaring downside to the print. NVL systems are expected to see higher networking content due to the NVSwitch trays being classified in the Networking bucket, which should help re-accelerate the business as Blackwell continues to ramp. Another point here is the GM step down, which the company had called out in prior quarters and the Street largely didn't believe. That metric will stay in the lower 70% for April/July with a material step up later in the year. In all, NVDA has earned a very high bar and wasn't able to deliver on its usual beat/raise cadence, but we think the company is executing smoothly through the product transition and now trades in the low 20x fwd P/E with the biggest risk to this year accounted for.

Price (26-Feb-2025) USD 131.28
 Price Target USD 175.00

Why OVERWEIGHT?

We are OW as the company has long-term sustainable growth led by a large lead in GPUs for AI in DC, with further Edge opportunities (Autos, robots, etc.) and a competitive moat around a large portion of the market.

Upside case USD 225.00

Our upside case of $225 is based upon 33x our upside CY26E non-GAAP EPS of $6.75, which assumes larger TAM for AI in the DC, higher Networking attach, and higher GMs.

Downside case USD 100.00

Our downside case of $100 is based upon 20x our downside CY26E non-GAAP EPS of $5.00, which assumes a correction of AI spending in the DC, a slower Auto ramp and pricing/share pressure.

Upside/Downside scenarios

Blackwell Ramp Drives Q4 Beat: January revenue beat at $39.3B (+12% Q/Q, vs. St. $38.3B) driven again by Data Center, which was ahead at $35.6B (+16% Q/Q, vs. St. $34.1B) on continued demand for accelerated computing platforms for LLM, recommendation engines and generative AI applications. Within DC, Compute revenue was $32.6B (+18% Q/Q) driven by $11B in Blackwell revenue and sequential growth in H200 and Networking was down sequentially at $3.0B (-3% Q/Q). However, Ethernet for AI and NVLink products related to Grace Blackwell experienced growth. Cloud providers were 50% of DC revenue in January. Auto came in above at $570M (+27% Q/Q vs. St. $459M) due to strong performance in self-driving platforms. OEM/ Other also came in higher at $126M (+30% Q/Q, vs. St. $96M). ProViz came in roughly in-line at $511M (+5% Q/Q vs. St. $507M), but up sequentially due to the continued ramp of Ada RTX GPU workstations. Lastly, Gaming came in below at $2.54B (-22% Q/Q vs. St. at $3.02B) due to limited supply for Blackwell and Ada GPUs. GMs came in-line at 73.5% and were lower sequentially due to mix shift to higher cost systems in the Data Center. Opex came in below at $3.38B vs. Street $3.42B but was up sequentially due to development costs for new product introductions. All-in, this nets EPS above at $0.89 (vs. St. $0.84).

DC and Gaming Power Sequential Growth: Guides April revenue just ahead to $43.0B (+9.3% Q/Q vs. St. $42.3B) with expectations for a continued ramp in Blackwell. We model Data Center up +10% Q/Q with +11% Q/Q growth in Compute and +5% Q/Q growth in Networking. We model Gaming up +10% as the company guided strong sequential growth going into next quarter. Additionally, we model Auto down -2% Q/Q, ProViz down -5% Q/Q, and OEM & Other down -2% Q/Q. Guides GM below at 71% vs. Street 72.1% as a result of continued unfavorable mix from the Blackwell ramp. Guides opex lower to $3.60B (vs. St. $3.73B), OIE to an income of $400M, and tax rate of 17%. All in, this nets an implied EPS of $0.92 in-line with the Street. Looking further, management reiterated their expectation for GMs to remain in the low 70s%, while Blackwell ramps, and then return to the mid-70s% in the 2H of CY25 when Blackwell is fully up to speed. Lastly, expect China to remain at a similar % of total DC revenue in FQ1.

Our coverage analysts use a relative rating system in which they rate stocks as Overweight, Equal Weight or Underweight (see definitions below) relative to other companies covered by the analyst or a team of analysts that are deemed to be in the same industry (the "industry coverage universe").

In addition to the stock rating, we provide industry views which rate the outlook for the industry coverage universe as Positive, Neutral or Negative (see definitions below). A rating system using terms such as buy, hold and sell is not the equivalent of our rating system. Stock Rating

Overweight - The stock is expected to outperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Equal Weight - The stock is expected to perform in line with the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Underweight - The stock is expected to underperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Rating Suspended - The rating and target price have been suspended temporarily due to market events that made coverage impracticable or to comply with applicable regulations and/or firm policies in certain circumstances including where the Investment Bank of Barclays Bank PLC is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving the company.

Industry View

Positive - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are improving.

Sustainable Investing Related Research: There is currently no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) of, nor market consensus as to what constitutes a 'sustainable', 'ESG', 'green', 'climate-friendly' or an equivalent company, investment, strategy or consideration or what precise attributes are required to be eligible to be categorised by such terms. This means there are different ways to evaluate a company or an investment and so different values may be placed on certain sustainability credentials as well as adverse ESG-related impacts of companies and ESG controversies. The evolving nature of sustainable investing considerations, models and methodologies means it can be challenging to definitively and universally classify a company or investment under a sustainable investing label and there may be areas where such companies and investments could improve or where adverse ESG-related impacts or ESG controversies exist. The evolving nature of sustainable finance related regulations and the development of jurisdiction-specific regulatory criteria also means that there is likely to be a degree of divergence as to the interpretation of such terms in the market. We expect industry guidance, market practice, and regulations in this field to continue to evolve.

Any information, data, image, or other content including from a third party source contained, referred to herein or used for whatsoever purpose by Barclays or a third party ("Information"), in relation to any actual or potential 'ESG', 'sustainable' or equivalent objective, issue, factor or consideration is not intended to be relied upon for ESG or sustainability classification, regulatory regime or industry initiative purposes ("ESG Regimes"), unless otherwise stated. Nothing in these materials, including any images included therein, is intended to convey, suggest or indicate that Barclays considers or represents any product, service, person or body mentioned in these materials as meeting or qualifying for any ESG or sustainability classification, label or similar standards that may exist under ESG Regimes. Barclays has not conducted any assessment of compliance with ESG Regimes. Parties are reminded to make their own assessments for these purposes.
