More Value Seen Accruing to Nvidia in Intel Collaboration; Still No Commitment to Intel Foundry

Yesterday, NVDA and INTC announced an agreement to co-develop custom datacenter and PC products that will integrate NVDA IP (NVLink and GPU cores) into INTC's x86 chips for rack-scale server and notebook PC applications. Alongside this agreement, NVDA is also purchasing $5B of INTC stock at $23.28/share (already valued at ~$6.5B based on INTC's closing price). At face value, the collaboration is positioned to benefit both companies on a few fronts: (1) by co-developing notebook SoCs that incorporate NVDA GPU compute tiles alongside INTC x86 cores, INTC's competitive positioning relative to AMD will theoretically improve (given likely superior performance of NVDA's iGPU relative to INTC's own ARC offering), while NVDA gains access to a new, as-yet-unaddressed revenue stream (mobile PC integrated GPUs or iGPUs), (2) NVLink-native x86 server CPUs from INTC could be deployed into NVDA systems for true rack-level scale-up, replacing (to some degree) NVDA's own custom Grace and Vera ARM-based CPUs, providing INTC with exposure to a segment of the server market that until now it has not been able to serve, which in turn widens NVDA's addressable customer base to include customers that specifically require (or have a preference for) x86 compute in their AI infrastructure, and (3) the $5B infusion of capital from NVDA further bolsters INTC's B/S following recent capital injections amounting to $12B+ from the sale of MBLY shares, the closing of the Altera deal, and investments by the US Government + SoftBank, and serves as a vote of confidence from NVDA on INTC's long-term growth prospects. Digging deeper though, we view NVDA as by far the larger beneficiary of this arrangement, as it opens up an entirely new swim lane for revenue growth (iGPU market) and broadens NVDA's market opportunity for rack-scale AI systems. For INTC, on the other hand, we think this is only marginally positive on the Client PC side (since iGPU performance tends to be a secondary or tertiary factor for most users in the notebook purchasing decision), and though gaining access to the rack-scale AI server market does create an opportunity for an additional layer of revenue for Intel's datacenter franchise (DCAI), relative to a ~$16B base business this would only be modestly incremental (possibly adding $1-2B on a run-rate basis under fairly generous assumptions). Critically though, neither company confirmed, either explicitly or implicitly, that NVDA would engage INTC's Foundry services in any meaningful capacity outside of advanced packaging (Foveros was mentioned as an enabling technology for this collaboration). Instead, both lauded TSMC as a "world-class foundry" and valued partner, and left the door open as to what extent INTC's own process technology would be utilized for these co-developed products. We think it's interesting that both SoftBank (with ARM, Ampere, and Graphcore semiconductor companies in the SB portfolio) and NVIDIA, with their massive leading edge manufacturing requirements, were more than willing to commit large investment dollars to Intel, but yet held back on making any sort of commitment to Intel Foundry.....we remain OW on NVDA and UW on INTC.

- NVDA still fully committed to ARM roadmap. NVDA characterized its collaboration with INTC as having “no impact” on its ARM roadmap, to which it affirmed its full commitment. We think this likely implies that there is a subset of customers that are either refraining from, or limiting their spend on NVL72 rackscale-based systems due the incorporation of ARM-based CPUs (instead using lower performance HGX/DGX-based x86 systems), and that the option to instead purchase x86-based NVL rack-scale systems opens up a new envelope of spend among these customers.
- Additional investments from other fabless semis companies now a more tangible prospect for INTC. The largely unexpected capital infusion from NVDA does beg the question of whether other, similar types of investments from fabless US semis companies are forthcoming for INTC. When queried on this, management simply reiterated that shoring up INTC’s B/S remains a top priority, but in our view this will remain an open question and an upside risk to the stock.
- Architectural design already far along - points to product introductions on the horizon....we think CY27 as the first year of Intel/NVIDIA integrated server/PC products in the marketINTC and NVDA design teams have been collaborating on these new products for about a year, having already completed “extensive” architectural work. Though neither company would commit to the expected timing of when these products will likely come to market, given the work that has already been undertaken we would not be surprised to see initial variants of both the server CPU and notebook SoC land some time in CY27.

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

NVIDIA Corporation (Overweight; Price Target: $215.00)

Investment Thesis

We believe NVIDIA continues to execute across all segments. While 1H is typically seasonally weaker than 2H, we expect solid demand in PC gaming to be a strong revenue driver for the company, offsetting PC OEM, which is in secular decline. We expect the data center segment to grow strongly as hyperscale customers continue to embrace GPU-accelerated deep learning for processing large data sets. We are encouraged by strength in the automotive and enterprise segments as well, although strong adoption of autonomous driving in the market remains to be seen. We anticipate significant upside in shares, driving our Overweight rating.

Valuation

Our PT assumes NVDA trades at 30x (in-line with its longer-term EPS growth rate) 2HCY26 annualized earnings power of $7.15 ($$1.73 + \1.85×2).

Risks to Rating and Price Target

- Although PC gaming demand seems resilient to macroeconomic weakness, any macro uncertainty could weigh on PC gaming demand trends. Given NVDA's ~53% exposure to the PC gaming segment, any consumer PC gaming weakness poses downside risk to our estimates.
- NVIDIA's GPUs could gain lower than expected deployment into data center applications as hyperscale customers further adopt deep learning as a new and effective way of processing large unstructured data sets. Any significant decrease in the adoption of deep learning by hyperscale customers or increase in competition could result in downside risk to our revenue and earnings estimates.

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

Intel (Underweight; Price Target: $21.00)

Investment Thesis

Over the past 20 years, INTC has consistently underperformed the SOX index in each of the 3-, 5-, 10-, and 20-year periods. From a company fundamental perspective, the company is facing tough macro headwinds and a highly competitive compute environment exacerbated by lingering questions on its ability to execute on its technology/product/diversification road maps. And from a financial perspective, the stock should continue to be under pressure as the market continues to be concerned about the sustainability of dividend payments as revenue/margins come under pressure during an industry downturn combined with the team's elevated capital intensity target which is crimping FCF (we estimate roughly breakeven FCF in 2027, consistent with management guidance). Given the market has time to gain confidence in Intel's ability to execute in its core compute and diversification initiatives, we believe INTC will be an underperformer relative to the group over the next 12-18 months, which drives our Underweight rating on INTC. It is important to note that our rating on INTC is a relative call vs. the group, for which we see a positive move over the next 12-18 months and where we see INTC stock participating, but we think at a slower pace.

Valuation

Our CY25 price target of $21 assumes INTC trades at a 15-20x (16x) times $1.28 of earnings power exiting CY26E, which is below our comp group which trades at 20-22x P/E, given increased execution uncertainty and high exposure to tariff/trade related dynamics. Given no upside to our PT and continued demand/competitive headwinds we maintain our UW rating on INTC.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

- Intel executing better than planned on its technology/product road maps could result in gaining technology parity or better earlier than expected, which poses an upside risk.
- Shorter than expected industry downturn period could result in a quicker recovery in both PC and datacenter server CPU markets, posing an upside risk.
- Higher customer uptake for Intel Foundry Services (IFS) could help Intel realize quicker revenue scale, posing an upside risk.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period. J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.

Coverage Universe: Sur, Harlan : Advanced Micro Devices (AMD), Analog Devices (ADI), Applied Materials (AMAT), Arm Holdings Plc (ARM), Astera Labs Inc (ALAB), Broadcom Inc (AVGO), Cadence Design Systems (CDNS), GlobalFoundries (GFS), Intel (INTC), KLA Corporation (KLAC), Lam Research (LRCX), Marvell Technology Inc (MRVL), Microchip Technology (MCHP), Micron Technology (MU),

J.P. Morgan Equity Research Ratings Distribution, as of July 05, 2025

	Overweight (buy)	Neutral (hold)	Underweight (sell)
J.P. Morgan Global Equity Research Coverage*	50%	37%	13%
IB clients	50%	48%	35%
JPMS Equity Research Coverage*	47%	41%	12%
IB clients	72%	69%	51%

*Please note that the percentages may not add to 100% because of rounding.

Percentage of subject companies within each of the "buy," "hold" and "sell" categories for which J.P. Morgan has provided investment banking services within the previous 12 months.

For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution rules only, our Overweight rating falls into a buy rating category; our Neutral rating falls into a hold rating category; and our Underweight rating falls into a sell rating category. Please note that stocks with an NR designation are not included in the table above. This information is current as of the end of the most recent calendar quarter.
